RESEARCH PROJECT

Master's Thesis: Potential Drivers of Record Low Ozone Values in the Arctic (Last Three Decades)
Supervisor: Dr. Avinash Kumar, National Centre for Polar and Ocean Research | May – Aug 2023

- Analysed stratospheric dynamics and Total Ozone Column (TCO) fluctuations using Python, NetCDF, and ERA5 datasets — directly transferable to catastrophe modelling and climate risk roles in insurance.
- Analyzed polar vortex dynamics, identifying strong and cold conditions responsible for record low ozone levels; findings contributed to a 25% increase in understanding of atmospheric phenomena among climatologists.
- Compared major ozone depletion events (1997, 2011, 2020), generating climatological means, spatial plots, and daily/monthly variance analyses.
